

Process for Entering the Ordained/Commissioned Ministry in the Seventh-day Adventist Church

1. Candidates must be baptised members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. They should consider the usual criteria for the Ordained Ministry of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in the British Union Conference.  <http://www.adventistinfo.org.uk/departments/ministerial/CriteriaforMinistry27JAN11.pdf >
2. Candidates should talk with, and obtain advice from, their local pastor about their call to ministry in the light of their involvement in the local congregation.
3. Candidates should arrange an appointment with their Conference/Mission President to discuss their call to ministry with a duly appointed panel.
4. Typically the minimum educational requirement for ministry in the British Union Conference is a Masters degree in Theology or Ministry. This study is usually completed at Newbold College and includes the Masters degree (2 yrs), built on a Bachelors degree in theology (3 yrs) or a Graduate Diploma in Theology (1 yr) for those with an existing degree.
5. Candidates should obtain an application form for enrolling at Newbold College. <Hyperlink to Newbold website> All students who have been resident in the British Union for three years and members in regular standing of a Seventh-day Adventist Church in the British Union for a minimum of one year, prior to enrolment, will qualify for a grant of 25% of their fees at Newbold College.

6. During their undergraduate study at Newbold College, the candidates will be placed in a local Seventh-day Adventist Church, where they will work with the local pastor and obtain pastoral experience in a local church situation.

7. During training at Newbold College candidates will have the opportunity of meeting Conference/Mission officers on an annual basis. As they draw near to graduating with a Bachelors degree or their Graduate Diploma, they will have the opportunity of applying for an additional sponsorship grant for the Masters degree, totalling 75% of their fees at Newbold College. Interviews take place in February of each year. There are usually only 5 grants available each year, 10 grants in total covering the two year course. Candidates not receiving a sponsorship grant still qualify for the 25% grant.

8. During their study for the Masters degree they will have the opportunity of being interviewed by the Conference/Mission officers, with the view to employment by the church. Interviews take place in February. Candidates will be informed at a later date if their application for employment has been successful.

9. Following the successful completion of the degree programme and employment by a Conference or Mission within the British Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, candidates will commence a two-year internship programme. Intern pastors will be assigned to a pastoral district where their work will be supervised by the senior pastor and the Conference/Mission Administration. After twelve months interns may be relocated, and assigned to another senior pastor, to broaden their experience.

10. After the successful completion of internship the Conference or Mission Executive Committee will approve a change of status from Intern Pastor to Licensed Minister and usually assign candidates to a pastoral district of their own. Again, their work will be evaluated on a regular basis by the Conference/Mission and after approximately four years from the commencement of internship the candidate will be considered for ordination /commissioning. Examination of candidates for ordination/commissioning is conducted by ordained/commissioned ministers and then approved by the British Union Conference Executive Committee.
